TESSON, Emily D. (Mrs.)

And Frank E. Tesson, 2 victims of Lusitania sinking, leave $29,201.37 estate for settlement among 2 sets of heirs. Court bases inheritance of property on theory of survival of fittest, holding that during their struggle with elements at scene of disaster, death of Mrs. Tesson occurred first, because of the fact that woman is naturally less strong than man who would make greater and more successful effort to save his life. Reasoning therefore, followed that Mr. Tesson inherited estate at his wife's death, and in turn his set of heirs inherited it at his death, leaving Mrs. Tesson's heirs invalid as claimants, June 18, 1919, p.1, c.5

TESSON, Emily Duncan (Mrs.)

TRUMBULL, Lyman (Judge)

Returns of late Judicial election not complete. However, in First Grand Division, Lyman Trumbull, Esq. is believed to have been elected by large majority over his 2 competitors David J. Baker and John Dougherty, Sept. 15, 1848, p.2, c.6

Judge Trumbull draws short term of 3 yrs. in drawing at recent term of new Supreme Court held at Mt. Vernon under the requirements of the new constitution. Judge Treat draws term of 9 yrs. and Judge Caton draws the 6 yr. term, Dec. 15, 1848, p.1, c.1

Judge Trumbull acts as counsel for state in the Supreme Court case of State of Ill. vs. the City of St. Louis, in the celebrated Dyke controversies. The court decides in making the injunction perpetual against city of St. Louis in erection of dyke in Miss. river. Judge Trumbull took no part in decision of the court; Feb. 9, 1849, p.1, c.2

"We hear with regret that Judge Trumbull of the Supreme Court, has determined to resign his office, and resume the practice of law in Alton and also in connection with his brother and former partner in Belleville. In resigning his office, Judge Trumbull will be able to enter upon a lucrative practice, trebling his salary as Judge, and it is too much to expect that our most distinguished lawyers, who can command from $2,000 to $5,000 per annum, in the practice of their profession, are going to work like dray horses in the public service for $1,200 and pay their traveling expenses, besides," May 27, 1853, p.1, c.3

Judge Trumbull carries the eighth Congressional District by a majority of 2814 votes, Nov. 9, 1854, p.2, c.4

Judge Trumbull elected to U.S. Senate, Mar. 1, 1855, p.2, c.1

Senator Yates speaks to citizens of Ill. in Washington, in which he praises Pres. Lincoln and refers also to Senator Trumbull, saying. "But not alone has Illinois given the greatest president and most renowned general and a rank and file unsurpassed by those of any other State, but also a statesman to whom it has been your pleasing duty to show your high appreciation tonight. Distinguished for great legal attainments, honored by high position in the executive department of the State by a seat on the Supreme bench, a member of the National House of Representatives and of the Senate of the United States, which station he has adorned for the last 12 yrs. so that to great ability, unfaltering energy and lofty devotion to country, he has added the experience which installs him in the front rank of American patriot statesmen. Fellow citizens, Lyman Trumbull was not on the field of battle; his duty called elsewhere, and in the theater of high debate on yonder hill and elsewhere yonder the American forum, he did as much by his brave words to thwart the devices and withstand the assaults of treason as any general from whose bright blade the beam of glory glitters," Mar. 15, 1867, p.4, c.1

Senator Trumbull retires from U.S. Senate, after 18 years continuous service and becomes private citizen.

"Few Senators have left a stronger impress than he upon the legislation and constitution of the Country," Mar. 7, 1873, p.2, c.1

"In 1855, 5 men held the balance of power in the Legislature and controlled the election of a U.S.
Senator. They were ex-Governor Palmer, Norman B. Judd, Burton C.
Cook, Henry S. Baker, now
Judge in the Alton District, George T. Allen, of Alton now physician at the St. Louis Marine Hospital. The Legislature consisted of 100 members, 75 in the House and 25 in the Senate, divided politically thus: Whigs and Abolitionists 47, Nebraska Democrats 48 and Anti-Nebraska Democrats 5--those named above. Gov. Palmer went into the Dem. caucus, and was expelled because he refused to be bound by the slavery men.
The two houses were organized by the quintette. Then came the election for Senator to succeed Gen. Shields, who was renominated by the Nebraska men; the Whigs nominated Lincoln, and the quintette, Lyman Trumbull of Alton. After many unsuccessful ballots and changing by the Nebraska men from Lincoln to Matteson, they gave way and went over in a body to Trumbull securing his election. Palmer, Judd, William B. Ogden, Judge Underwood (of St.
Clair) and Gen. McClelland came very near taking Trumbull's place, but none of them thought they had a chance. It is probable that the action of the five gentlemen named above was the pivot upon which all subsequent political events have turned. Had these five Legislators gone over to the Whigs, instead of the Whigs to them, and elected Lincoln to the Senate, the latter would never,
probably have become the leader of the new Republican party, certainly would never have made his famous campaign against Douglas, in 1858,

which brought him so prominently,
"before the country as the great Anti-Slavery leader. Palmer would never have become one of Lincoln's trusted Gen. and a Republican Governor of Illinois Trumbull would never have had his splendid career of 18 yrs. as the master mind of the U.S. Senate," Jan. 7, 1875, p.2, c.3

WANN DISASTER

Appalling disaster shortly before noon today at Alton Junction, known by railroad name as Wann, when nearly a hundred men and boys viewing a railroad wreck, became living torches of fire, when five burning oil cars exploded and showered them with a seething rain of burning oil. Victims literally burned into a crisp. Desolation and agony are on all hands. All doctors of Alton and vicinity have been called. Five dead bodies have been found and many are dying in hospital and homes near scene explosion. Many homes, the stock yards and a timber near scene, destroyed by fire. The wreck occurred about 9 o'clock this morning when a limited passenger train of the Cleveland, Cincinnati and St. Louis R.R., known as the Big Four R.R., running at high rate of speed ran through an open switch and crashed into long line of loaded oil cars on a siding. Engineer Webb Ross, of Mattoon, burned to death in explosion that followed. Fireman Richard White, of Mattoon jumped and escaped injury. Engine and cafe car destroyed in the flames. Miss Morris, of St. Louis burned to death in cafe car. Seven oil cars took fire and a switch engine removed the other four passengers cars and cars of the freight train to safety. Passengers only shaken up a bit, but none others, but Miss Morris injured. Several hours later as a crowd of 300 persons stood nearby wreck, watching the burning oil cars, there was a deafening explosion, as five oil cars exploded and shot high into the air, showering the burning oil a distance of 200 yards over the spectators. Victims of the burning oil, with their clothing on fire fled in a panic. Many dropped in their tracks. Many were burned helping others. The scene was shocking, Jan. 21, 1893, p.5, c.4

Horrors of oil explosion increasing, as Altonians form relief committee. The dead now number twenty persons and almost seventy five are burned and maimed, horribly. St. Joseph's hospital at Alton is scene of much suffering as many victims are charred beyond recognition and not expected to live. Blame is centered upon Albert Gratten, switchman who was in charge of switch which was left open, Jan. 23, 1893, p.3, c.4

Three more die. They are: Henry Weigand, Alton Junction; W.B. Richardson, Alton and George Roloff, Upper Alton. Survivors tell horrifying incidents of the disaster. Coroner's jury holds railroad company responsible for disaster, Jan. 24, 1893, p.3, c.4

Rumors that the switchman Albert Gratten was barbering at time of wreck are found untrue, Jan. 25, 1893, p.3, c.5

Twenty-six years ago, Jan. 21, 1893, occurred the Wann disaster when more than a score of persons were burned to death and nearly fifty scarred for life, when five burning oil cars which they were viewing, exploded and showered them with burning oil. The cars were set fire, following a railroad wreck, resulting from a fast passenger train running through an open switch and crashing into a train of loaded oil cars. The survivors are all scarred and badly crippled. Some received several thousand dollars in compensation, while others received nothing. The survivors of the explosion, living today are: Frank Miller and Thomas Philbrick, of Alton; John J. Henry, of Upper Alton and John P. Mullane, of Kansas City and is compelled to wear a mask over part of his face, owing to the results of the severe burns he received in the explosion, Jan. 23, 1919, p.5, c.5

WANN DISASTER

Judge Burroughs, in the circuit court at Edwardsville, sustains demurrer filed by attorneys of Big Four R.R. against suits of Messrs. Frasier, Bartlett and Miller, victims of disaster. The demurrer sets forth that the attorneys for plaintiff did not show what duty the railroad owed to plaintiffs and whether the plaintiffs were trespassers on the company's right of way. It is presumed by those familiar with the case, that the plaintiffs have no standing in law and that cases would not stand, Nov. 16, 1893, p.5, c.6

Investigating committee makes final report to the House and returns three bills. They are: First, to regulate employment of railroad switchmen, brakemen, yardmasters, conductors, signalmen, firemen and engineers. They shall pass a physical examination and an examination in the rudimentary branches, be familiar with the code of signals and their ages must be over 15 years and under 50 years. Second, bill to regulate transportation of coal oil and other products of petroleum switches for handling same and no more than three loaded cars shall be coupled in a train with other freight. The third bill, limits the speed of trains through switch limits at no more than 12 miles per hour, Feb. 25, 1893, p.3, c.5
